OUR STORY

The owners of Lickity Split, Mitch and Gina Dissinger, are passionate about many things, two of which are food and the town of New Holland. In the summer of 2006 they bought a local ice cream truck named Lickity Split as a fun way to engage the community during the summer. A few years later the opportunity presented itself to open a restaurant in the historic Kauffman's Hardware building in downtown New Holland, and the adventure began. In June 2010, Lickity Split officially opened the restaurant doors and they've never looked back.

These days the Dissinger's hours are filled with food, hospitality, ice cream, and community. In the warmer months keep an eye out for their ice cream truck.

Thank you for supporting our small business!
